1956 and '57 will be remembered by all the cats as the "coolest" ever. Such stars as Elvis Presley, Fats Domino, The Platters, and The Teen-Agers made "rock and roll" famous, or infamous, in the opinion of some of the "squares." The hallowed halls of ivy reverberated with the enthusiastic call of "Hound Dog" and "Ape Call."

The appearance of "rock and roll" has made some wonder if there really is "Music In All Things."

"Ooby Dooby"

"Don't Be Cruel"

Mike Vasina (28) is given trouble by several players from the opposing team after a jaunt of several yards.

After niftily picking up yardage on a pass play, Spike Payne (81) is met head-on by a Central City tackler.

All appears to be confusion as Vic Palik (35) is hauled down by a "low-down" opponent.

Reavis Gibb (39) eludes the grasp of one opponent only to find his troubles aren't over.

Vic Palik (35), who is lugging the ball, runs into trouble in the form of two opponents; teammates Reavis Gibb (39), Spike Payne (81), Marv Lnenicka (29), and Francis Cermak (73) look like they want to give him help.

"Bitter With The Sweet"

Merlie Smith and Al Bonne (27) do their task well in blocking out a would-be tackler leaving Mike Vasina (28) a clear path to a touchdown.

A David City Scout is snowed under by a host of opposing tacklers as Marv Lnenicka (29) and Francis Cermak (73) are too late to give assistance.

A Central City back sweeps around end while Spike Payne (81) and Marv Lnenicka (29) move in to dump him.

Team captain Merlie Smith (25) runs interference for Reavis Gibb (39), but he is tackled from behind by an opponent.

Vic Palik (35) shows the way for ball-toting Merlie Smith, while Mike Vasina (28) and an unidentified Scout rush into the center of the fray.

"Whatever Will Be, Will Be"

Kenny Miller (25) scores for DCHS against Valley as Dave Wilson (24) crouches to jump for the rebound.

Terry Vavrina (35) lays the ball in the basket as Kenny Miller (25) and Dave Wilson (24) wait for the rebound.

Terry Vavrina (35) breaks fast and dumps in two points for the Red and Black against St. Paul.

Mike Vasina (22) pours it through for David City from the free throw line as Bill Zinnecker (32) and Dwayne Neujahr (33) wait for the rebound.

Bill Zinnecker, although faced with two defending North Bend Tigers, goes up and tries a jump shot.

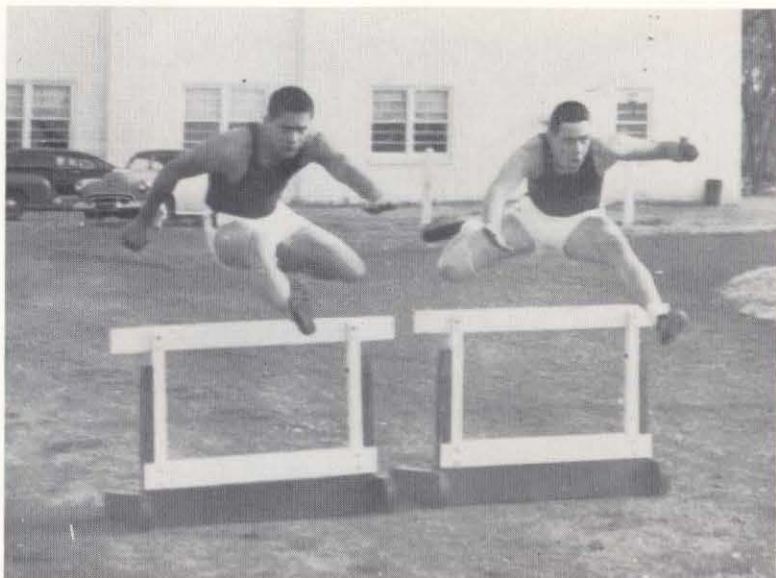

Larry Heins (20) goes after the ball while Terry Vavrina (35) looks as though it will bite him if he gets any closer.

"Winner Take All"

Dave Wilson, promising sophomore discus thrower, strains for a good throw in a practice session.

"Cold wind, rain, snow, sleet:
All depict another track meet.
The Almanac of Richard, Poor
Could not fortell the weathermore.
The weather, poor, the applause light,
But still they go with all their might.
They run, they jump, they throw, and such,
And we wonder if they've proven much,
But the realization of the job well done,
Is worth the chips,
Whether or not the race is won."

—Anonymous

Getting away a good practice heave is Vic Palik, hefty sophomore shot putter.

Norm Kobza, left, and Kenny Miller, right, seem to be enjoying their pre-season jaunt around the track at the municipal field.

After a very successful freshman year in track, letterman Lynn Ostermeier works out during a pre-season run.

"Lucky Song"

The "gleam of victory" flashes from the eyes of the senior class officers, left to right, Julie Byers, vice president, Karen Fadschild, president, Donna Muehlich, secretary, and Dwayne Neujahr, treasurer, as they examine the yelling cup which they have won for the second time.

"I'm Counting On You"

All eyes are on the president of the student council, Reavis Gibb, as he explains the details for the student council party. Members are, left to right, J. Vasina, N. Pokorny, M. Schroeder, E. Rech, D. Veskrna, A. Zeilinger, D. Wilson, G. Vasina, G. Fyfe, J. Hertz, D. Huisenga, and R. Gibb. A. Bonne and D. Walton were not present when the picture was taken.

Decorating for the Sadie Hawkins party are, left to right, Gwen Vasina, Mary Schroeder, and Ann Zeilinger.

Though not as active this year as last, the student council of DCHS sponsored a Halloween party that proved to be a success. They decorated the gym in the fall colors and planned a very enjoyable evening.

Serving as the officers for the council during the year were Reavis Gibb, president, Al Bonne, vice president, Mary Schroeder, secretary, and Dick Huisenga, treasurer.

With the addition of male members to the Pep Club, the girls were relieved of carrying the heavy pop cases at the basketball games. Lynn Ostermeier, left, and Gary McFarland, right, give the girls a hand.

The officers of the pep club have led the organization through a very successful year. They are, left to right, Charlene Porter, treasurer, Marilyn Hoeft, vice president, Emelie Rech, secretary, and Karen Haba, president.

The first football game of the year for David City was at 3:45 p.m. in the gym. The players were extraordinary—or so they thought. Many passes (at the real team) were completed in the first skit presented by the pep club.

Buying the gift for the Homecoming Queen is no laughing matter as one might think from the expression on the faces of the DC Club officers, left to right, Terry Vavrina, president, Dean Walton, secretary-treasurer, and Merlie Smith, vice president. The boys are being assisted by Mr. Remmers of Albright's Jewelry Store.

Hearing the first strain of the school song, everyone rises to join in with the pep club in singing "We're For David."

What does a DCHS student look forward to at 4:02½? You're right! A sack of pop corn and a bottle of pop from the pep club stand. A hungry grade-schooler greedily reaches for the sack from Kathy Murphy.

The local chapter of the FHA was represented at the National Convention in Chicago by their president, Marilyn Fricke. Marilyn reported on her trip at an assembly program.

"Buttons . . .

The FHA again strived for an Honor Chapter Rating this year. They had charge of an assembly when the film, "Of Human Rights," was presented; they sponsored the Good-Will drive for wearable clothing; and at Christmas time they bought gifts for the shut-ins in David City.

Preparing to leave for their caroling party, the FHA and the FFA pause for the annual photographer.

Guiding the organization through a successful year are the officers of the Future Homemakers of America. They are, standing left to right, S. Jaster, publicity chairman, N. Svoboda, recreation chairman, and M. Schroeder, treasurer; seated left to right, B. Kulhanek, parliamentarian, J. Nixon, song leader, M. Rerucha, vice president, V. Sisel, secretary, and D. Art Kovar, the "best-dressed hobo" at the FFA Greenhand Initiation, gets his award from President Terry Vavrina. Other boys are, left to right, Kenny White, Bill Marushak, Robert Struebing and Harold DeWispelare.

President of the FFA, Terry Vavrina, registers an expression of "Hey, you guys, quiet down!" as he impatiently raps his gavel for attention.

The reason for these boys' big smiles could well be the memory of the good time that they had at the National FFA convention at Kansas City. The boys attending the convention are, clockwise from top, J. Svoboda, F. Zelda, L. Cernohlavek, B. Swanson, and N. Pokorny. *

Reviewing the Quill and Scroll magazine for good ideas for the Scout and Scoop are the Quill and Scroll officers, left to right, Julie Byers, treasurer; Karen Haba, secretary; Maureen McElravy, vice president; and Gwen Vasina, president.

School Marching Band

... Together"

Under the direction of Richard Baller, the DCHS marching band traveled to Lincoln for the State Fair and Band Day, to Grand Island to the Harvest of Harmony, and to Schuyler for the Schuyler vs. David City football game. They also played at the Fall Festivals in Brainard and Bruno. During the concert season two concerts were presented at the City Auditorium.

"We make beautiful music together," could well be said by the members of the trumpet trio. They are, left to right, Donnie Rezac, Gayle Fyfe, and Marilyn Fricke.

"Without A Song"

Strains of "Deck the Halls with Boughs of Holly" echoed through our halls of ivy during the Christmas season during madrigal practice. Members of the madrigal are, left to right, D. Kilgore, C. Buntgen, R. Miller, C. Porter, L. Helgoth, M. Schroeder, L. Backhus, M. Fricke, D. Rezac and K. Haba. The madrigal is accompanied by K. Fadschild.

The 50-voice choir represented David City at the annual music contest in Fremont, as well as presenting a number of concerts for students in assembly programs and for the general public.

Besides directing the high school choir, Mr. Soucek gives private lessons and instructs the following small groups: Madrigal, three girls' trios, boys' quartet, freshman girls' sextet, and the boys' and girls' glees. In addition, Mr. Soucek is the vocal music instructor for the grades and presented the musical portion of the beautiful Christmas program at the auditorium.

Rocking to Roy Orbison's "Go Go Go!" is Dwayne Neujahr, who really gives his all for the Scout at the sales kick-off.

Making their daily trip during fifth period are the ad staffs of the Scout and the Scoop. Ad staffs members are, left to right, K. Alma, J. Hanis, S. Jaster, D. Kilgore, M. McElravy, and M. Hoeft.

The two publications of David City High, the Scoop and the Scout, are edited by the members of the journalism class.

At the annual kick-off, the beginning of Scout sales, the staff presented a number of record pantomimes. This was enjoyed by the student body and the faculty.

Both staffs worked hard to meet and surpass the ratings that were earned by last year's staffs.

"Paper Dolls"

The first of the month always rolls around faster when there is a deadline to meet. The editor of the Scout, Julie Byers, right and her associate, Karen Haba, can testify to the truth of that statement.

"Make Believe"

Working "behind the scenes" are, left to right, Merlie Smith, Al Bonne, and Glen Ladwig. The frame they are working on, when completed, made a huge snowman for the Senior Spectacular.

The "Winter Wonderland" sketch in the Senior Spectacular was really beautiful. Left to right, G. Glock, M. Fricke, E. Rech, H. Timms, M. McElravy, P. Beebe, and J. Byers practice for the number.

Mary Ann Rerucha was unveiled as Miss Melody the first night of the Senior Spectacular.

"Something new has certainly been added," was the remark the public had after seeing the Senior Spectacular. First only an idea in the minds of Mr. Jim Motl and his committee of four, Dwayne Neujahr, Terry Vavrina, Mary Ann Rerucha, and Julie Byers, the idea grew and developed and was a smashing success at the presentation on March 12 and 13.

The juniors' presentation of "The Skeleton Walks" met with the general public's approval. The farce comedy was presented at the City Auditorium on October 16 and 17.

"Now learn your parts!" directs Sharon Barlean, prompter of the Junior Class Play. Members of the cast, left to right, D. Roubal, C. Barlean, M. Klingeman, D. Kucera, C. Porter, J. Hasik, R. Cermak, M. Hoeft, and R. Miller, seem to realize that Sharon really isn't as stern as she may try to have them believe.

"Sunday Drivers"

Learning good control of the steering wheel is one of the first lessons taught by Mr. Jim McConnell, the drivers' training instructor. After arriving at the auditorium parking lot, the students make figure 8's. This training proves invaluable for future driving.

Knowing correct driving techniques for gravel roads is equally important in our rural community as learning how to drive in town. Mr. McConnell gives his students training in both types of driving.

Parallel parking will never prove too difficult for those who have had drivers' training. Here Henry Cook gets first-hand instructions from Mr. McConnell on the right way to parallel park.

Although being quite jocular in his drawing of jackrabbit starts and stops, Mr. McConnell explains to his class the dangers of this type of thing.

"We're For David"

Sitting on their royal throne with an "air of dignity" are the 1956 Homecoming Queen and King, Karen Fadschild and Terry Vavrina. They reigned at the dance after the Homecoming game with Central City.

The crowning of the Grid King and Queen highlighted the Homecoming activities for 1956. At the annual Homecoming dance, which was sponsored by the pep club, many of the former graduates were welcomed back.

Mr. Barney Lewellyn, Wayne State Teachers College football coach, was guest speaker at the football banquet. The members of the marching band and pep club, as well as the football team, were guests of honor. They shared the spotlight with all the other people who helped during the football season.

Members of the football team, band, and pep club are enjoying themselves at the football banquet.

"Eleventh Hour Melody"
Classes

"The Type . . .

Members of the first year typing class warm up before their class begins.

The order of Gregg Artists, an international honorary organization for students having superior shorthand penmanship, has awarded two DCHS students, left to right, Gwen Vasina and Mary Ann Rerucha, pins as a testimony of their achievement. Mrs. Florell, commercial instructor, presents the girls with their certificates.

Emelie Rech, a senior commercial student, learned how to operate the new Burrough's Bookkeeping Machine with skill and efficiency. This machine is used in many bookkeeping departments so the training that the girls get in using this machine will do them much good when they get jobs next year.

The Commercial Department had the distinction of being awarded a gold seal certificate in the Order of Gregg Artists Shorthand penmanship contest, in which there were 20,000 entrants and only 1,000 awards given. Every student in the two shorthand classes entered the contest and several of the girls won pins to show their achievements. Students at David City are indeed fortunate to have the splendid set of office machines that are available for use. "The girls become accustomed to these new machines," states Mrs. Idonna Florell, instructor, "and thus are amazed when they see the near-obsolete machines that are used in some offices." DCHS has one of the best office machines courses offered in a school in Nebraska.

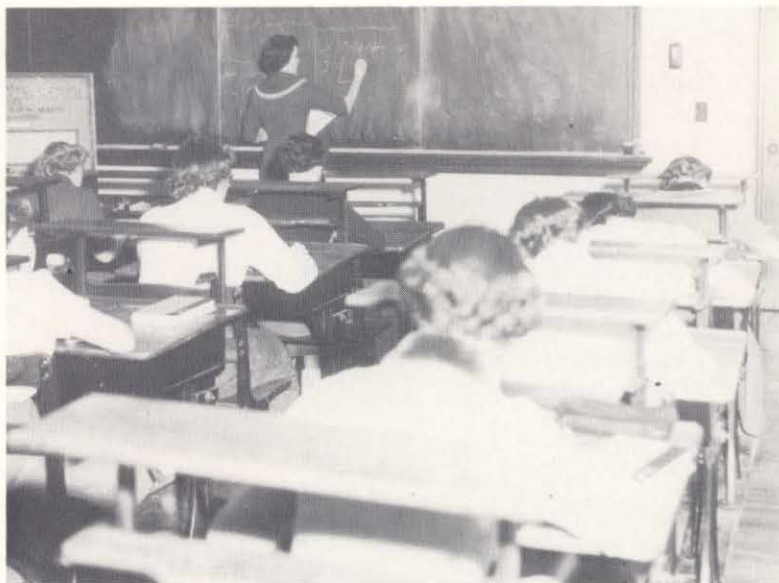

Having had good shorthand training when she was a junior, Loretta Novacek, right, has no trouble in getting down all the dictation from Mr. Davis, superintendent. Office practice training such as this aids in getting a better position in the business world.

...writer Song"

Among the commercial courses offered to students at DCHS are steno I and II, typing, office machines, and office practice. After taking these courses, a girl is equipped to venture into the business world with confidence in herself and her skills as a secretary.

This year the department acquired a new dictaphone, electric typewriter, and bookkeeping machine. Each year the commercial department is allowed to get six new typewriters, and the office machines that are needed. Because of this policy the students have the best available commercial equipment.

The first year shorthand class writes the words in shorthand as Mrs. Florell spells them and writes them on the board.

Mary Ann Rerucha uses the electric typewriter, which is easier and faster to type on, to copy her notes.

Joanne Hanis builds her speed and accuracy on the typewriter by typing from dictation on the dictaphone.

Mrs. Florell is ready to help Maureen McElravy, who is learning to operate the calculator, anytime she should need her.

"Farmer And The Cowman"

Mr. Bob Florell lectures to the boys in the third year ag class on a problem in income tax.

The boys in ag II listen intently as Mr. Bob Florell explains about something that is puzzling them in their preparation for the crops identification contest.

To be a successful farmer it is necessary to know about a great many things. To help them achieve this goal, Mr. Bob Florell, instructor, arranges for the vocational agriculture students to follow a course of study that will prepare them to meet any emergency that may arise on a farm.

The vocational agriculture students have home experiments for which they keep record books. This is one of the requirements which they are asked to meet before the year is over. Field and judging trips are also a very important part of the program they follow.

The freshman ag class prepares for the stock judging contest by studying charts.

Mr. Bob Florell helps Bob Huisenga with his record book for his home experiment.

Joyce Huisenga, left, and Nancy Kudlacek, right, put all they have learned to good use as they apply their ideas in arranging a model kitchen.

The "Homemakers of Tomorrow" are getting excellent training under the guidance of Miss Margaret Briggs. Miss Briggs, who is here for her second year, teaches the girls to cook, freeze, sew, plan a home, budget money, and many other things.

The girls then practice what they learn by having home experiences. Every third week they have a conference with their instructor and begin a new project.

"Tea For Two"

Mary Ann Klingeman, right, is a "picture of patience" as she stands quietly so Sharon Barlean, left, can pin the hem in the skirt that was Mary's sewing project this year in Homemaking III.

Among other things, the Homemaking III students learn how to bake and cook foreign foods. Janice Kucera places in the oven a pie which she has prepared.

Janice Forney, Marcie Kratchovil, Sharon Jaster, and Janice Kucera, left to right, sample different kinds of cheese in order to learn about the flavors and differences through their own experience.

"There Are Such Things"

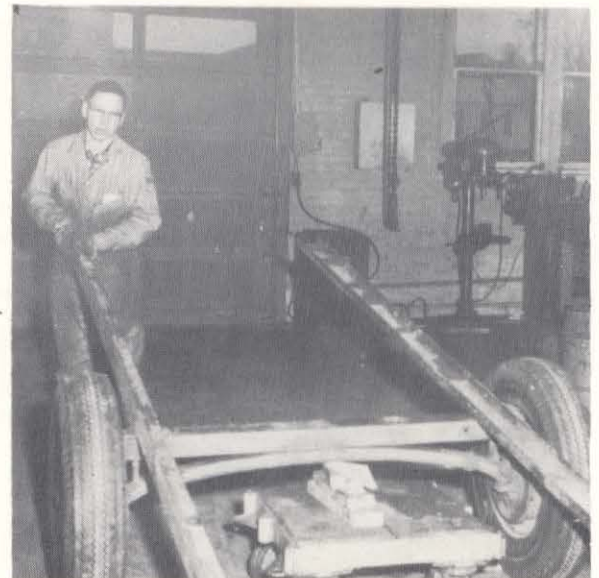

Farm mechanics shop, an integral part of the vocational agriculture program under the instruction of Mr. Bob Florell is a very important part of learning to be a farmer. In shop the boys learn to make such things as trailers, hayracks, and feeders. In the process of making this machinery, the boys work with metal lathes, arc and acetylene welders, and other tools found on the modern farm.

Douglas Bohaty, a third year student, paints a lawn chair, one of his projects for this year.

Terry Vavrina uses a sharpener to sharpen chisels. Terry is a member of the fourth year ag class.

Leemer Cernohlavek, a fourth year student, works on the self-unloading trailer which he built this year in shop.

"See Saw"

"Don't buy what you can make," could very easily be the motto of the boys who take industrial arts. In this course, which is taught by Mr. "Buzz" Gakemeier, the boys learn to make everything from lamps and book cases to beds and desks. The pieces of furniture that are made by the boys are put on display at the annual open house at DCHS. Whether a boy should choose to use his training in industrial arts in his vocation or just to fix things around the house, it will always be of great value to him.

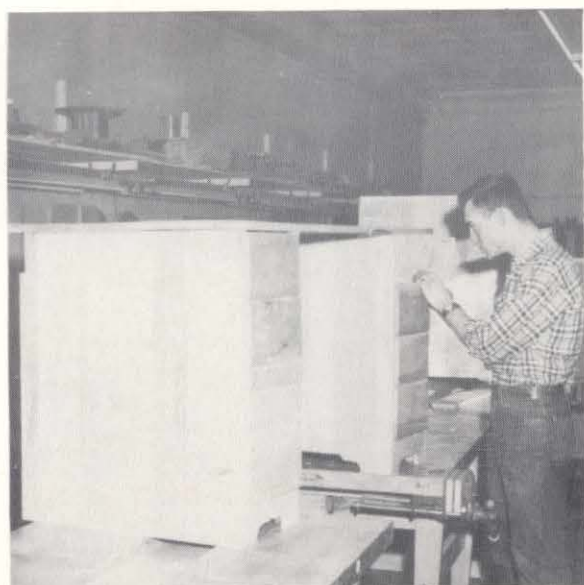

Bill Boroviak applies stain to the coffee table that was his project in industrial arts this year.

Wayne Struebing, a fourth year student, adds the finishing touches to his project.

Bill Payne, who is a third year student, puts molding on the bed that is his project this year.

Louie Chermok is carefully checking the drawers in the desk he is making.

"Two Different Worlds"

Compasses and rulers come in handy as the students in the geometry class prepare to do their assignment.

Marilyn Fricke, left, makes hydrogen by water displacement as Pat Beebe, right, measures sodium chloride. These are just two of the many things that are studied in chemistry.

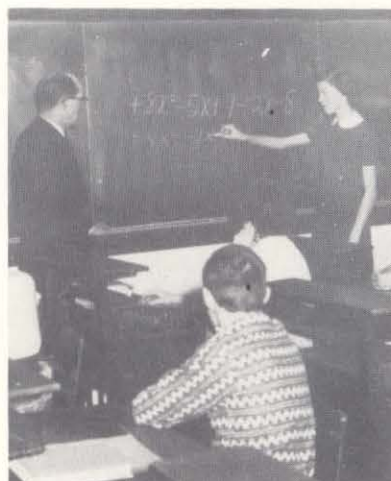

Whether you plan to attend college or to work after graduation, it is necessary to have a well-rounded high school education. To help with this, DCHS has provided two very important subjects, science and math.

Among the science classes offered are general science, biology, physics, and chemistry. All of these classes are under the instruction of Miss Catherine Swanson.

There are several classes of math also. They include general math, algebra, geometry and advanced algebra.

Gary McFarland and Marjorie Remmers, two chemistry students, test a salt solution to see if it will conduct electricity.

Darlene Kucera demonstrates how to work a problem as Mr. Davis and the rest of the general math class watch.

Marianne and Diane Remmers, biology students, prepare iodine for testing to see whether there is starch in some foods, as Miss Swanson stands ready to assist them.

"Every Day of My Life"

Mr. Motl helps Marilyn Fricke with the part she played in Macbeth. Everyone in the senior English class participated in the play.

English is important whether you go to college, become a secretary, or do anything else where you are mixing with people. For this reason, the English instructors at DCHS do all in their power to give everyone the best knowledge of English that it is possible to get in the four short years of high school.

"Those who forget their past are condemned to repeat it," a philosopher once said. However, it is just as important to know the present as well as the past. For that reason, civics, in addition to world and American history, is an essential part of the academic curriculum.

The freshman English students watch their books as they listen to the records from "Merchant of Venice."

Mr. Smith shows the students in his sophomore English class how to diagram a sentence containing many prepositional phrases.

Gene Kopecky shows Jim Robins how the guillotine, one of the more popular tools of the French Revolution, worked. This was a part of their studies in world history.

The students in the civics class study much about the problems that confront America today.

Mrs. Blevins, left, and Mrs. Tomek, right, are "busy as bees" as they bake buns and cut butter in preparation for the rush of hungry students that will descend upon them at noon.

The custodians, Chet Smith, left, and Glen Ladwig, right, make short work of cleaning the halls of DCHS.

"Don't Take Me For Granted"

The junior English class takes a "day off" from their English textbooks in order to take a guidance test.

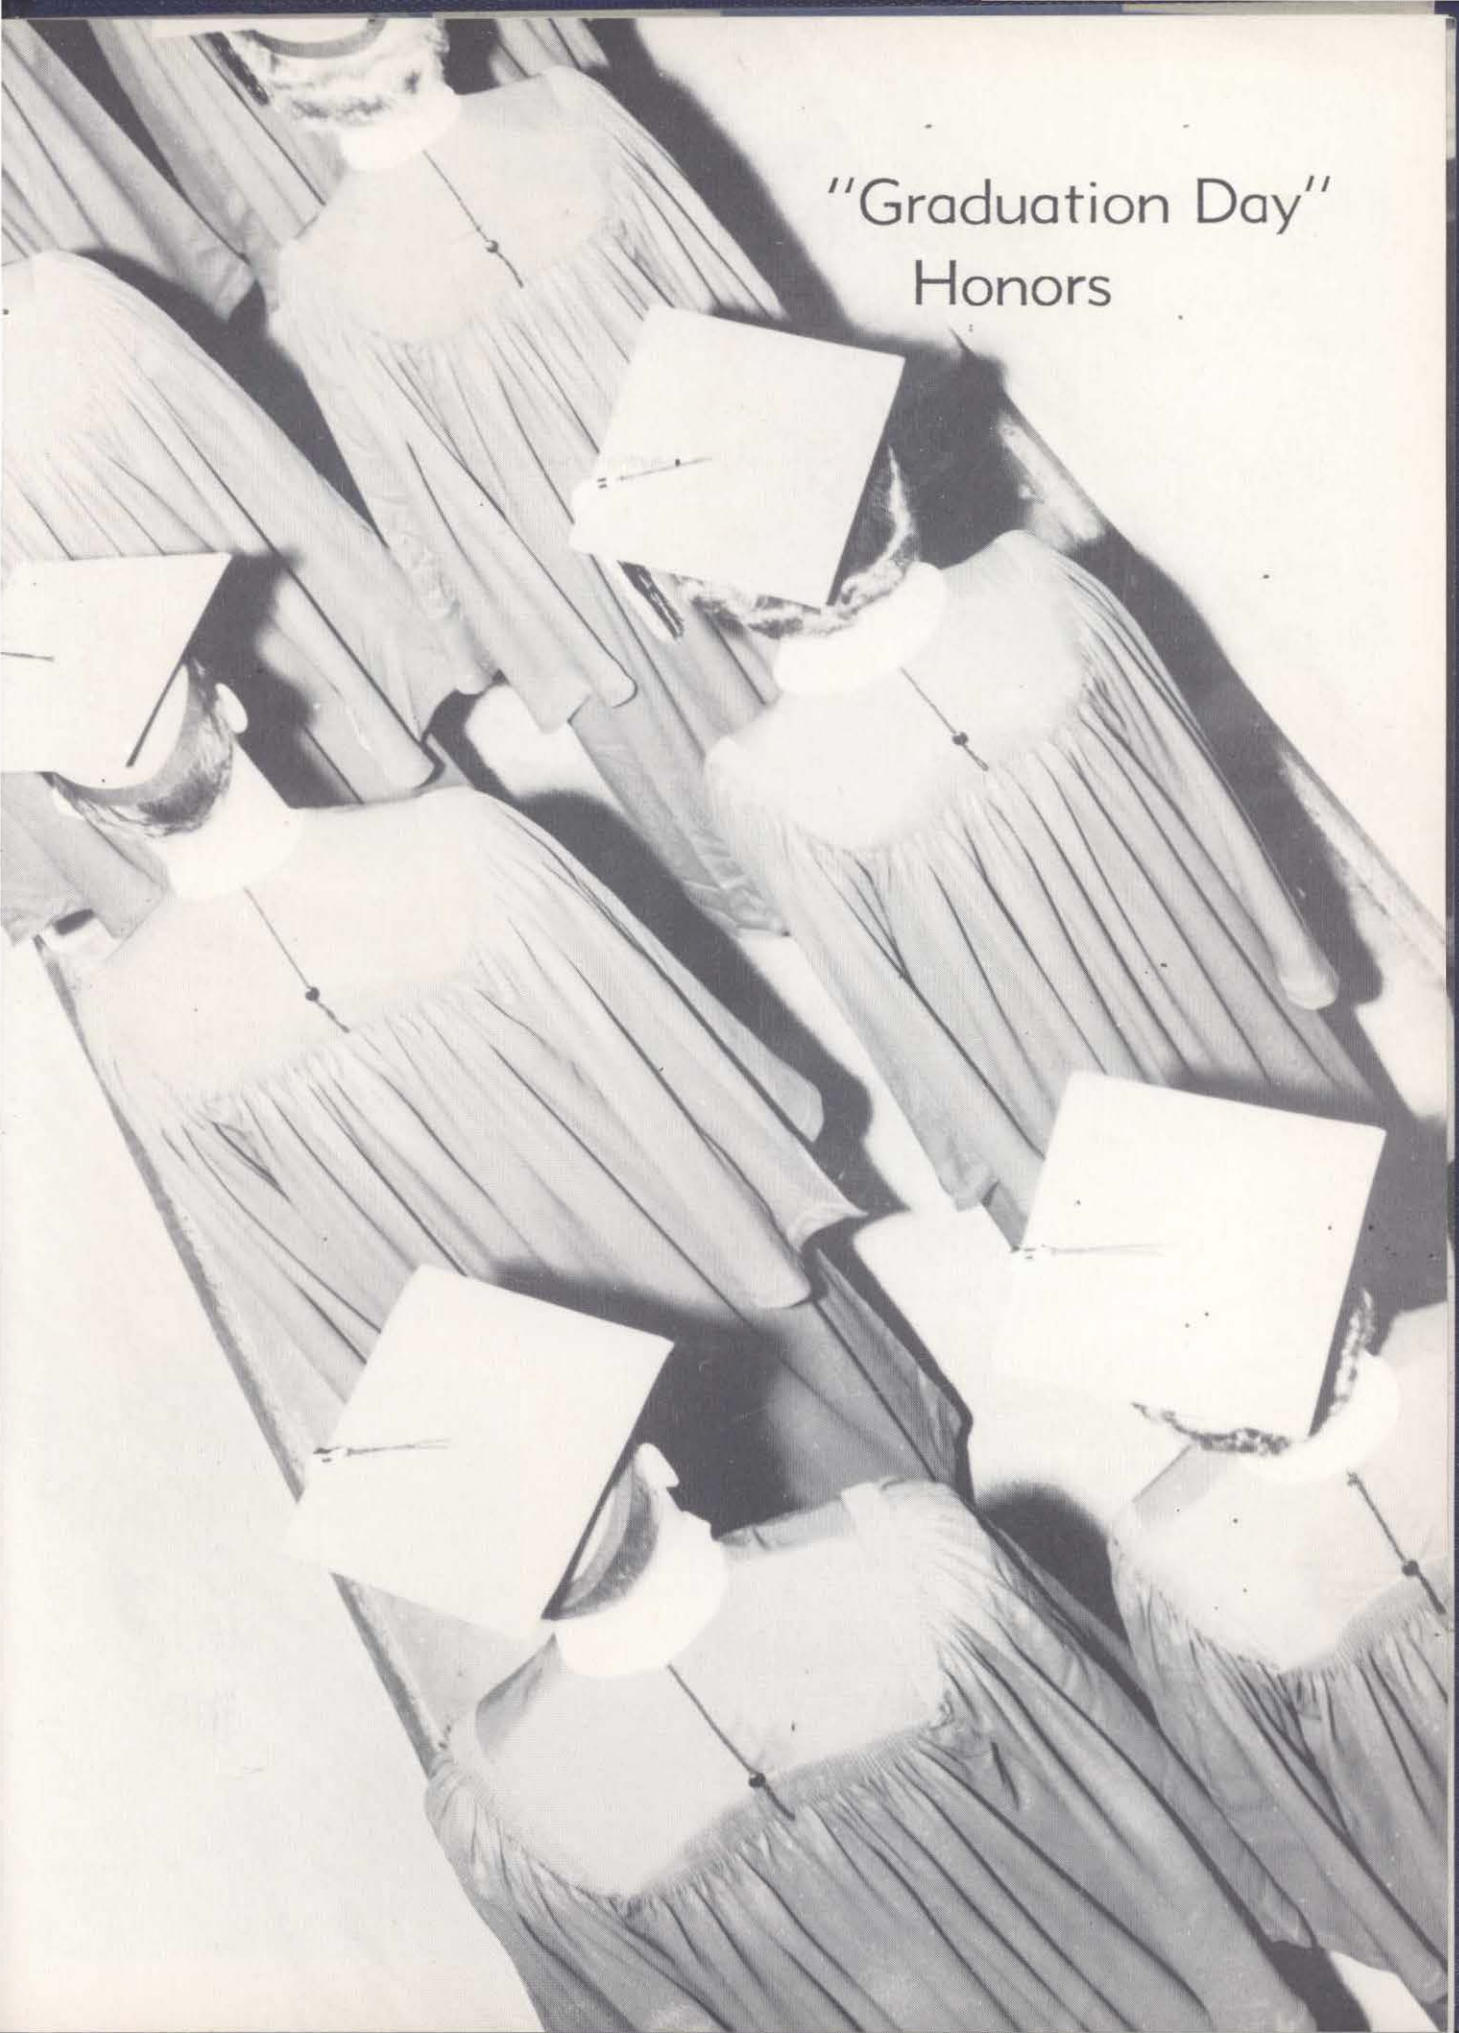

The efficient operation of anything requires much hard work from many people, and DCHS is no exception. The custodians and bus drivers all work together to keep the school clean and everything operating properly. Mrs. Blevins and Mrs. Tomek do their part also by preparing hot lunches each day to feed the hungry students that want to eat at school.

Part of the program at DCHS to find out where the students' interests and abilities lie is the guidance tests that are taken by the students about four times a year.

The bus drivers, John Fadschild, Bob Doner, John Tomek, Chet Smith, and Fred Forney, left to right, take a few minutes from their busy schedules to have their pictures taken. These are the men that give so generously of their time to drive the busses to the many activities that the school organizations attend.
