August 10, 2017 marked the start of a new school year. A new year meant a new chance for all of us to decide who we want to BE. Throughout the year, no matter who you are or what extracurricular you're in, you will almost always hear the two letter word. From your coach telling you, "BE aggressive," or your sponsor telling you, "BE creative," you can find something new to BE.

Aside from discovering who you want to BE, this year our school wanted to BE more positive in our everyday lives and find the positive in every negative. At the start of class, yearbook students all shared one good thing that happened to them the last 24 hours. Art students drew and wrote three positive things that happened to them in sketch books. Mrs. Samantha Ladwig's classroom had a positivity jar to balance out any negative comments.

The school year brought many changes to faculty with three new teachers as well as new rules. The school wanted to take more precautions to BE safe. As Principal Couch said in an email that shook the school, "Things change, times change, rules change." When backpacks were taken out of classrooms as a result of gun violence in schools across the country, there was an uproar among students. While some students were agreeing that backpacks are a potential safety hazard, others were taking pictures of their backpacks with the caption #freethebackpacks. Other students took videos of their school supplies in a clear bag. In another large change, we were able to BE academically successful with the implementation of Homework Completion Time, better known as HCT.

We wanted to BE champions. BE smart. BE a high graduate. BE positive. BE creative. BE unique. BE successful. #BEKIND This year we worked to become the best version of ourselves that we could BE.

BE a Senior

Senior life

What is the year of a 2017-2018 DCHS senior like?

Transitioning from junior year to senior year can be a difficult process. David City's senior class is eager to begin life beyond high school and prosper in future careers. There are many ups and downs to senior year including struggling with scholarship applications and appreciating their existence. College applications are one of the earliest stressful things to complete during senior year. On college applications, you should be very honest and make yourself sound appealing in order to get accepted. They are not too time consuming unless you have an essay. Advice for future seniors: if you do have to write an essay, take your time and always have someone proofread it before you turn it in.

Seniors begin to fill out scholarship applications around September or October because some of the earliest scholarship deadlines are in December. If you were to ask a senior, they would probably say that the worst part of senior year is filling out scholarship applications. They are different in lengths, so some will take fifteen minutes and some will take up to an hour or even over a week to write. Many require multiple references, so it is important to have formed positive relationships with others throughout high school. Seniors, as much as they hate scholarships, are happy that they are a thing because they provide free money for college.

Parents Night is another large part of the life of a DCHS senior. It is a time for students to be recognized for everything that they have done in their high school career. They and their parents get presented, and students give their parents a rose as a way of showing how thankful they are for their help over the years.

Seniors are at the top of the school class wise. They feel like someone is watching them at all time, meaning they have to do things perfectly. Many seniors become very full of emotions during their senior year because it starts to feel like everything that you are doing is one of the lasts.

The class of 2018 at DCHS believe they are really good friends. They feel like their class doesn't have many problems because for the most part everyone gets along, so it's easy for seniors to talk to one another. They all have very different personalities, and that helps them all be friends because they get to combine all the weird, funny, different personalities. It is what makes this senior class so unique.

Graduation is an important part of a senior's life, but some dread it because they don't want to leave. Others are excited to see what the world has in store for them. Leaving will be hard, but at the same time it is the start of a new chapter of the seniors' lives that can bring happiness and success. Even though it feels like the year went by so fast, they feel prepared. All they want to do is make every second count and leave knowing they have left a mark on the school and the people in it.

The crowd cheered as Debbie White slid across the home base before the ball swooped right past her back. During the 2017 softball season, David City's softball players learned a lot of new things and accomplished many goals. With many new members and returning members, overall it was considered a successful year.

"I learned that in softball there isn't time for drama and that we are more than just a team; we are more like a family," sophomore Heidi Alvarado said. This was Alvarado's first year playing softball.

Senior Debbie White has played softball most of her life, and her softball career is now coming to an end. "Throughout all these years I have learned nothing better than to work together. Nothing screams softball more than communication and trust," White said.

White considered this season hands down the best that she has ever played. With all the rain and mud and the many games that were therefore postponed, the team really had to push through and continue.

Sophomore Madison Masek was another returning member on the team. By giving her best effort and working hard to improve every day, she plans to carry this on into next season.

"At the end of the day we always make it home, and it takes effort to be able to accomplish something," Alvarado said.

A sport with no benches, no timeouts, and no half-times. The DCHS Cross Country runners consisted of juniors Carter Ossian, Miles Svoboda, and Justin Escamilla; sophomore Dalton Krause; and freshman Clayton Harris.

The junior high runners included eighth grader Tre Daro and seventh graders Braxton Small, Mitchell Shanahan, Ava Schlotfeld, and Ashley Villalba. The team is coached by Brian Hermelbracht and assistant Coach Matt Fowler. The team came out fifth out of 16 teams at districts. They shared that this was a proud moment for the team.

To prepare for their meets, Hermelbracht kept a set practice routine for consistency. Runners could be seen all over town in the heat or the rain.

Team members prayed before meets. Following the race, members had chocolate milk, popsicles, and rice crispies to restore electrolytes lost in the vigorous run.

"If you're going to do it, don't just and say 'I want to do cross country.' You'll have to put in lots of miles and work for it, especially if you want to make a contribution to your team," said Carter Ossian. Cross country is about effort and stamina, and DCHS hopes to continue putting in the hard work in future years.

The Scouts faced an opening of opportunities with returning coach Cortney Couch. Players stated they have thoroughly enjoyed the energy, offense, defense, and perspective Couch has brought to the team. "I have enjoyed it [coaching] immensely. There is a certain camaraderie intrinsic to football that you don't see as much in other aspects of life. Our players are all business all the time," coach Couch said. Couch has declared that it would have been very easy for a player to lose composure during a frustrating game, but that was never showcased. He also noted that the team dedicated themselves to improving and supporting each other in and out of the game. "I think we played together pretty well; most players got along throughout the season. It [teamwork] kept the team together. We played some difficult games but stuck with it," senior Colin Vandenberg said. The Scouts fought throughout the year with high endeavors and intensity.

Volleyball is about the consistency and determination of a team. The Lady Scouts doubled the record from last year, bringing the record to 12-19. The girls came to practice with 110% effort and came out with high development. This bond of the team radiated off the court.

"I had a great time this season. In my four years, I have seen so much improvement that it's unreal. Even from the previous year, we doubled our record which was an awesome feat. We always say that we're family, and I couldn't have asked for a better one for my senior year," senior Olivia Couch stated.

Change occurs from the amount of effort put into the game. The Lady Scouts faced a roller coaster throughout each game but still faced the season with high hopes.

Girls Basketball

The opponent goes in for a shot but misses, and senior Chaquoya Givens goes in for the rebound. She fights the ball away and passes it to junior Macy Svoboda to run it across the gym. Scenes like this were common as just one part of a busy year full of adventures on the DCHS girls basketball team.

"I think it's been a rollercoaster of emotions this year with being a senior and having the 'lasts' and just being able to pick up more wins than last year," Givens said.

The seniors shared many last memories and moments together that they will take with them and cherish.

"The thing that I'm going to take with me and carry in my heart forever are all the memories of the bus rides, the locker room pre jams, and just the bond that I created with my team," senior Ciera Poulas said.

The basketball team consisted of seven seniors, three juniors, three sophomores, and eight freshmen girls. The team was coached by head coach Nathan Wall and assistant coaches Emily Maresh, Tyler Brester, and Alan Zavodny.

This year the girls set many goals and put a lot of dedication into the team from having basketball practices early in the morning to just shooting hoops in their free time.

"I go to every practice even if it's not required. I also work on my own time and just shoot around... we all get along like a family and set goals for each game and work hard on whatever we do," junior Eli Alvarado said.

This season the team had many obstacles and many losses, but they tripled the record of wins from last year. They ended the year with six wins. Although they didn't end the season how they wanted, team members are proud of their improvement.

"Overall I would say it was a great year full of adventures and many memories that I will remember," Givens said.

The 2017-18 varsity and junior varsity boys basketball teams consisted of 15 players. Practices were high energy and upbeat. Players counted on each other to not slack off, and if someone did, teammates would always help refocus them.

"Since I am a senior, I am really going to miss the sport and my teammates," Colin Vandenberg said. "These past four years I have really enjoyed growing in the sport and being able to play with my classmates and learning more about them as people and as my teammates."

The David City High School boys basketball team set a goal of winning 12 games this season but fell short with nine wins. They also had several goals that didn't involve numbers. As a team they set a goal to give 100% on the court and to always stay positive.

"My favorite part of the season was when we went on a four game win streak in January. It had been a long time since we had any sort of streak, and putting four in a row was super fun," junior Will Danielson said. "I hope we continue to build on the year before, just like we have been the last couple years. We have high hopes for the team next year and already have some big goals set in our minds."

BE Powerful

The crowed is cheering. You can feel your heart rate increase at an intense rate. They call your name, and you walk with confidence onto the mat. You are proud to know that you are wearing a David City singlet and already know you are going to get the win. This is what most of the David City wrestlers feel right before they walk onto the mat and show what they've got. The wrestling team has been very successful this year including bringing nine people to state and earning five state medals.

The 2018 David City Wrestling team had a great run in this season. After a series of successful regular season tournaments, the team took the state runner-up title. Leading the way was senior Melvin Hernandez, wrestling at 145 pounds, who earned his third state medal! Fellow senior Seth Styskal earned a third place medal.

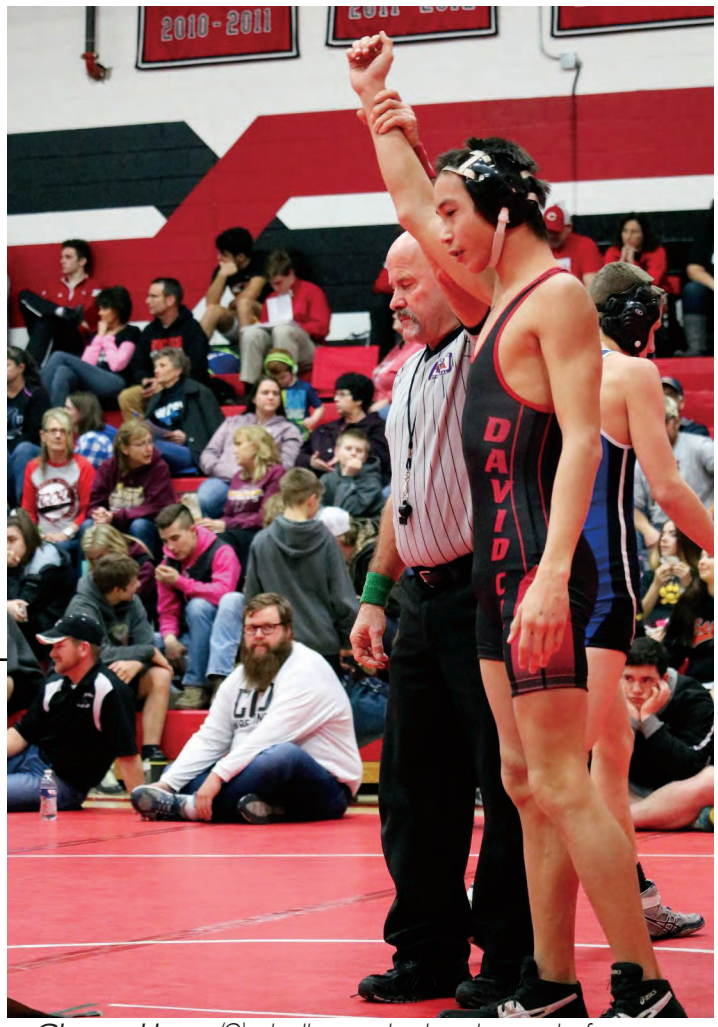

But the team wasn't just composed of hard working seniors. It also took dedicated freshman adjusting from the junior high wrestling program. Freshman Clayton Harris said, "At the endings of our middle school career, we practiced with the high schoolers which really prepared us for the high school year. The transition has been very smooth and almost seamless."

Outside of regular season tournaments, DCHS wrestlers became the conference and district champions. Freshman and state qualifier Dylan Vodicka said, "Winning as a team is pretty great, and also winning individually is [pretty great]."

The wrestlers who will return next year are already looking forward to another season and another shot at a state title.

Cheerleaders are in the background doing things you don't normally see. From cleaning the fairgrounds at 6 o'clock in the morning to preparing the week long celebration of homecoming, cheerleaders do it all. The 2017-2018 team consisted of senior Renee Backstrom, juniors Evelyn Carreto, Josie Cudaback, Allison Daro, Kali Egr, and sophomores Madison Hoeft, Brittney Palik, and Daphne Vizcarra-Navarro.

"It's hard to describe them as a group. It's very diverse and different. Some are super spontaneous, but in the end they're all dedicated and hard working," commented cheer coach Meagan Lasiter. This was Lasiter's first year as head cheer coach. "Even being a part of the team last year, I was able to see how much the cheerleaders and dancers did, and it was very eye opening once I was the one in charge."

This year, cheerleaders prepared for the upcoming year by starting practices in May 2017. During the summer, the cheer team held many practices and began homecoming preparations. The cheerleaders used various community service projects as fundraisers such as cleaning the fairgrounds after the Butler County Fair. Throughout the year, cheerleaders prepared pep rallies, homecoming, small projects, and held the Little Kids Cheer and Dance Camp. "The camp is such a fun week. Even after the camp is over, I'll still have elementary students come up to me and say hi and hug. It's adorable," Evelyn Carreto commented.

Traveling to away games was one of the girls' favorite Throughout the year, the cheer team traveled to many away games. They even got to go to Kansas!

Being the only senior, Renee had a huge leadership role. "I liked it because it's easier to lead a team with a set person with experience, and in turn it was also sad that I didn't get to share the experience with someone else. Don't be afraid to try out your freshman year, and keep trying if you don't make it because you never know."

Bows, jazz shoes, and jackets are just the beginning of the David City Platinum Dance Team. The dancers created bonds that grew throughout the season. Senior and four year member Renee Backstrom said, "It [dance] taught me that leadership and responsibilities are good qualities to have in anything that you do."

The 2017-2018 dance team consisted of eight talented young women: seniors Renee Backstrom, Lauren Hoeft, and Ciera Poulas; juniors Olivia Bell, Allie Daro, Kali Egr, and Macy Svoboda; and sophomore Madison Hoeft. These girls put time, money, and effort into their team. From a nine to five dance camp in the summer to a hurricane like storm after a Lincoln Salt Dogs baseball game, these girls have been through it all. Through their highs and lows, the girls have formed a bond that will never be broken.

For David City's homecoming dance, the dancers worked their pom-poms off to really spread school spirit. "The homecoming dance during halftime was fun and exciting," said Kali Egr, referring back to their pom routine to "Hound Dog." The crowd also enjoyed other routines as well. Some members of the football team joined the girls dancing to "Footloose," choreographed by Renee Backstrom and Macy Svoboda.. Madison Hoeft stated, "The guy/girl dance was so much fun, and it was exciting to watch the guys dance on their own."

The 2017-2018 dance team had each other's backs and stood up for each other. The dancers managed to overcome challenges because members were easy to talk to whenever there was a problem. The seniors helped lead the team the right way. According to junior Olivia Bell, "They did not put class labels on us, we were a team. There was no such thing as seniors, juniors, and sophomore. We were a family."

Hurdling over hurdles, jumping into giant sand pits, passing the baton, and pacing yourself during the mile, the high school girls track team can do it all. The girls had an successful season. The team placed second at the Aquinas Invite, fifth at the Centennial Invite, and fourth at the Shelby- Rising City Invite. The Scouts are a team that work at success in order to meet their goals. They are constantly improving and doing their best.

"My favorite part would probably be just seeing how much people can improve in a year. Usually, people are doing their best by the time districts roll around, and that's exactly what you want to see," said senior Olivia Couch.

The track members pushed themselves and worked to do their best while making memorable moments that they will not forget. "My most memorable moment would have to be at the Centennial meet where I ran my 400 in 1:02 seconds and ended up getting first," said freshman Maya Couch.

The women's track team had traditions that helped them continue to work on becoming the best they can be. Some traditions included state qualifying girls picking the t-shirt design and anyone earning a new personal record receiving a little treat at the next practice.

Throughout the season, the team worked to become better individually but also to build each other up throughout the season. At the end of the day, it's all about striving individually and as a team to become the best athletes and human beings you can be.

HS Boys Track

This year's track team has dealt with hard times, many injuries, and obstacles, but the boys always pulled through and gave it their all.

As Carter Ossian said, "The hardest part of my season had to be during triple jump at the Conference meet. I was slowly coming off of my illness, and my body was trying to make its way back to where it was at the high point of my season. I wasn't able to perform to the best of my abilities, and knowing that if I had just stayed healthy I could've placed and helped the team score more points weighed on my conscience."

This demonstrates the hard working, dedicated, and team-oriented mindset of this year's track team. The team is proud of athletes who placed at meets and earned new personal records throughout the season. An athlete that had given a very large contribution to the team would be Clayton Denker. He has fought through injury and difficulty in practice due to his injury. But despite all these challenges, he still qualified for the state meet in the 400 meter run. The entire team including the coaches were incredibly proud of him and his feats.

BE Bold

The David City Golf team has had an eventful season with many highs and lows. Head Coach Tom Vanwinkle was excited to start a new season and see all the new golfers and the talent that they would bring to the team. In the middle of the season, junior Will Danielson said that the season has felt very long and he hadn't consistently perfomed well at meets. Freshman Kordell Abel said that the season was very long. As a freshman, he knew the season was going to be a little rough for him. He felt like he could have shot better at some meets, but he has to get his swing figured out first.

Despite their worries early to mid-season, the David City Golf team performed very well throughout the year. One of their accomplishments was placing first at the Fremont Country Club. They also placed runner-up at the Clarkson-Leigh Patriot Invitational. The boys have put in many hours on the course to achieve these placings. The team headed to districts at Oakland with five golfers including juniors Will Danielson and Wiley Hein and freshmen Jordan Kracl, Cavan Navrkal, and Ethan Zegers. At the end of the meet, Will Danielson qualified for the state meet held at the Kearney Country Club with a score of 81. With these successes under their belt, the team already has their eyes on what they could achieve next year.

BE Fearless

What Would You Do?

What would you do to fulfill your desires? David City's One Act team explored this question in Franke Toelle's adaptation of Doctor Faustus, originally written by Christopher Marlowe. The crew told the story of a man named Faustus (senior Jackson Hardin), who is ultimately damned to Hell after making a pact with the devil. Along the way he meets Mephistophillis (senior Will Heller), a demon who aids Faustus in selling his soul to Lucifer (senior Joshua Escamilla). Faustus faces greater temptation upon meeting Helen of Troy (senior Bethany Tebbe) who is conjured to further persuade Faustus into selling his soul. Despite meeting good angels, Faustus continues on his dark path until his soul is ultimately claimed by the devil in this tragic tale of morality.

"We have plenty of newcomers this year. I look forward to seeing how they all do and carry out our legacy," said senior Will Heller. Early on, One Act members knew the team had the potential for a great season. Returning members set goals for themselves right away. Sophomore Neleigh Kovar, who played the role of the deadly sin Greed, planned to work on her volume and facial expressions to improve in her acting. Others hoped to improve their reactions to other actors on stage. The entire team worked to help new members learn the ins and outs of the stage order to put on a strong performance. Jackson Hardin's hope for the season was prophetic: "I am extremely excited for our shot at going to state. I think we have an awesome script, cast, and coach to get the job done."

After winning their first competition, the One Act team attended the conference meet in Wausa, Nebraska where they became the conference runner-up team. This placing left the team discouraged and worried for the district competition. After more work and practice, the One Act team became district champions in an extremely close battle with Aquinas. The One Act team's efforts ultimately paid off as they became the Class B State Champions. This was the team's first trip to state in five years, so they were proud to reclaim the state title for the first time since 2007. Jackson Hardin was also named best male actor in all of Class B.

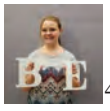

The demons hold down Faustus and prepare him for Lucifer at the end of the play as he realizes his soul is about to be claimed by the devil.

BE Heard

The David City speech team has always made their voices heard. From 2006-2017, David City earned seven state championship and three state runner-up titles. In 2016, the team won state. In 2017, the team won state AND broke the school record for the most points scored at state. That meant the 2018 speech team quite a tradition to uphold.

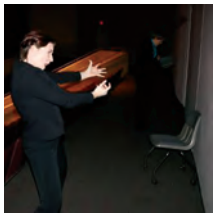

Despite losing many strong senior performers from the previous year, the team was determined to carry on the speech legacy. Early in the season senior Will Heller said, "I'm always happy to see new people on the team. We need to grow in order to keep being successful. I expect our freshmen and new members to put in their best to improve and connect as a team." Many returning members had goals for the season such as vocal projection, facial expressions, acting and reacting, and more. In order to be successful, the team committed to themselves to practicing inside and outside of school. If you were to walk around the school building between 9-10 pm from January - March, you would probably see dedicated speech members voluntarily practicing well after school hours.

The team's hard work was about to pay off. After a series of successful regular season meets, David City placed first at the conference meet, making the 2017-2018 school year the tenth straight conference championship. The team moved on to districts where members placed first in eight out of nine events. This is the first time the school has ever achieved this feat. 13 team members qualified for the state meet held at the University of Nebraska at Kearney.

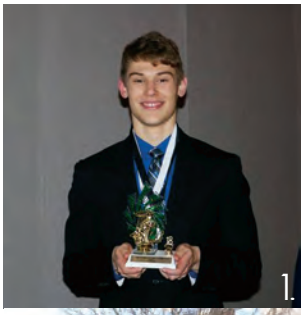

At the Class C-1 state speech competition, David City won another first place title. The team earned 174 points, over 50 points higher than the state runner-up Omaha Brownell Talbot. David City also took away ten individual medal including three state champions and five runner-ups.

3. 2. 1. Liftoff!

This year's band and choir had a great start under new to David City instructor Mr. Joseph Brumm. Returning and new musicians were interested to see what he had in store for the year. All was well. Bethany Tebbe said Mr. Brumm was "a great and caring instructor who cares about the advancement of his students both musically and in life."

Fall meant the arrival of marching band season. They found success as the band placed second in Class C parade marching and earned an excellent rating in field marching at the Columbus Marching Band Festival. Brooke Bell shared the marching band was especially excited when they received a superior rating at the Oxbow Marching Competition.

Among the four home concerts throughout the year, band and choir were busy preparing for the district music competition held at CCC in Columbus in the spring. Both band and choir received an excellent rating. At districts, seniors Bethany Tebbe and William Heller took home a huge honor for their vocal duet. They received an outstanding performance award. This is prestigious because each judge can only give one such award over the two day contest, meaning only seven outstanding performance awards could be given out total.

And through it all, the students and instructor did their best to have fun. "Early in the year, a student formed a wrong vowel mouth shape. When she made the right mouth shape, everyone stared at the look of terror in her face. It became a running joke and educational tool for the rest of the year," Mr. Brumm recalled.

Despite many seniors graduating, there are high hopes for next year. As senior and future music teacher Bethany Tebbe said, "I am blessed to call them my family. I can't wait to see what they do in the future."

If you're bored and want something to do, what can you do other than drugs and alcohol? Stay-U might have the answer. Stay-U is a organization that focuses on teen safety, especially on keeping the community a drug free area. This year, Stay-U has organized many activities to promote teen safety.

One such activity was a fulll week of activities for elementary students called "Red Ribbon Week." The main goal of the project was to spread awareness about drug use in our community. Many of the members took time out of their day to work with kids. They also tied red ribbons to cars of students and wrote on school sidewalks to grab everyone's attention.

Stay-U members also participated in a project called Teens in the Driver's seat. "Teens in the Driver's Seat brings attention to people driving without their seatbelt, texting and driving, and drinking and driving. We do seatbelt checks twice a year; once in the fall and once in the spring," sophomore Ashlee Marvin said.

On May 4th, 2018 all Stay-U members worked together to host a middle school fun night. During the fun night many seventh and eighth grade students enjoyed games, pizza, and dancing the night away.

After the school year was over, in June Stay-U members Ethan Dietrich, Ashlee Marvin, Jaymee Lee, Daphne Vizcarra-Navarro, and Ivy Joe Miller went to UNL's campus for a fun and productive weekend. June Jam is an event that Stay-U members from various Nebraska schools can attend. During the weekend members had the chance to meet new people, learn new things, and have fun together.

Stay-U members have had a busy school year promoting drug and alcohol free activities and promoting teen safety. They are already looking forward to next year. You could be in it, too. As Stay-U adviser Amy Sander said, "Membership is ALWAYS open. Just because we meet at the beginning of the year doesn't mean you can't join the group, our door is always open!"

Proud moments, fun times, and happy tears were all a big part of a successful year for David City FCCLA.

Students kept busy with Fall Leadership Workshop for the officers, District Leadership Conference for all members in the fall, and participation in national FCCLA programs. For "Families First," FCCLA members held a toy drive in October, donating toys to Toys for Tots. They also went to a corn maze at Camp Fontanelle.

In November, nine members attended the National Cluster meeting held in Oklahoma City where they competed in Skill Demonstration Events. This involved everything from students completing case studies to giving impromptu speeches to demonstrating how to use knives in the kitchen. Then members began working on STAR projects, a program which allows students to showcase family and consumer science, interpersonal, and career skills.

After the district STAR competition, students prepared for state convention held in Lincoln at the Pinnacle Bank Arena. There they shared their knowledge and love for FCCLA with over 2,000 members across the state and competed in the state STAR competition.

"This year our nine senior members were the first group I've had from seventh grade completely through their senior year... each competed, participated in projects, or otherwise showed leadership during trips and other activities. This was a great demonstration of the quality DCPS produces when children are given the opportunity to succeed," FCCLA adviser Tonya Zegers said.

With nine seniors leaving, it will be exciting to see how younger members step up to lead the organization

State STAR results:

Braxton Small, Recycle and Redesign (junior division), silver.

Jaymee Lee, Recycle and Redesign (senior division), silver.

Ivy Joe Miller and Bryanna McAuley, Nebraska Health and Wellness, bronze.

Isabel Small, Fashion Construction, gold

Cole Martinez, Teach and Train, state runner-up.

Angel Sweeney, Applied Mathematics for Culinary Art, state champion.

Cole Martinez and Angel Sweeney qualified for the national STAR competition which will be held in Atlanta, Georgia this summer.

Braxton Small (7), Cole Martinez (12), Jaymee Lee (10), Angel Sweeny (12), Isabel Small (12), Bryanna McAuley (10), and Ivy Joe Miller (12) are the seven STAR competitors who made it to state.

Student council. The only way the students of David City High School are able to express their opinions throughout the community and our school.

Student council runs like the U.S. democratic system; they vote and help make rules to help enhance the school, voicing their opinions and taking votes on ideas.

"We work a lot together to create the best situations for students, Maya Couch (9) said.

These students are the true leaders of our school.

"I like working with the leaders. People usually aren't on student council if they aren't good leaders and the kids usually develop into good leaders," says sponsor Amy Backstrom. She has sponsored student council for 22 years and has worked with many young leaders.

This year the student council help put on the Red Cross Blood Drive. 122 people donated blood, and the members of student council mainly ran the events.

"I let the students do it all. Other than the last shift, the kids usually run it," says Mrs. Backstrom.

The kids also had planned the blood drive this year. "The kids have to make calls and get the donors. That's the hardest part. They also take the posters around town and I order food," she also said. Students also had set up and ran the food table and checked many people in.

Student council also does other smaller projects throughout the year like penny wars in the spring and helping carry in food for the school's backpack program each

The crack of the gavel adjourns monthly National Honor Society meetings. The organization, filled exclusively with the tops leader of the school academically and characteristically, come together to plan events for the school.

"Often times, NHS is associated with good grades. Although this is an aspect, being "smart" is not the only quality that is expected. A NHS member must be a leader and a role model in the school. This means being a positive influence to others and promoting the good things happening in our school," said three year member Olivia Couch (12).

"They are a group of students who challenge themselves intellectually... who uphold high principles of morality and ethics who are not afraid to stand up for what is right. They put in long hours often engaging in multiple curricular and extracurricular activities at the same time. But most importantly, they are individuals who place service towards others above their own self-interests. They want to make a positive change for the benefit of others. They want to make a difference!" said NHS sponsor Mrs. Tiffany Heins. This is her first year running the organization.

National Honor Society coordinates several things during the school year. From selling red and white carnations during Homecoming Week to planning a dodge ball tournament in March, you could say National Honor Society members like to keep busy. One new thing they have recently done is a monthly Random Act of Kindness, more commonly referred to as RAK. Each monthly act is intended to have a positive impact on the recipients' lives.

"My favorite RAK was getting to eat lunch with the elementary students. It made me realize how much those younger kids look up to people in high school such as myself. The smiles on their faces when we walked into their classroom and told them we were going to join them for lunch was priceless," said Lauren Hoeft (12).

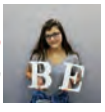

In April, the RAK was bringing flowers to someone who has made a difference throughout our school year.

Some other events NHS did was Scare Away Hunger, an event that allowed students to dress up for Halloween by donating $1.00 or bringing donating two canned food items. In December, NHS members took part in ringing bells for the Salvation Army and raised a total of $406.

NHS also requires all members to complete two hours of community service throughout the school year, so you never know what good deed you will find members up to!

BE Agricultural

Would you like to learn about agriculture and how it works? If you do, FFA is for you. FFA is a national organization that promotes agriculture and leadership. This year FFA members were active, taking part in competitions and completing community service projects. They also worked to develop leadership, communication, and agricultural skills. Senior Caeden Pierce said, "I was interested in agriculture, and it [FFA] was a good way to learn. You meet advisers, members, and business leaders. You meet advocates in agriculture."

One community service project members participated in was Feed the Farmer, an event that fed local farmers. In animal science barnyard, FFA members and local companies brought in farm equipment and livestock for elementary students to learn about agriculture. Members also participated in the Lower Platte North NRD spring conservation sensation, guiding elementary students around activities involving natural resource conservation practices.

Other activities throughout the year included FFA members visiting local businesses to discover career opportunities. They competed in leadership development events competitions, career development competitions, livestock judging, and more. At the state convention members continued to compete in these events at a higher level and also participated in leadership labs.

One of the highlights of the year was when senior Brooke Bell participated in state officer interviews and was selected to be the 2018-2019 FFA State Vice President. She said, "At first I couldn't believe it. This is a dream I've had since I was an eighth grader, so it was crazy to think it was finally coming true. But after a little bit, I felt more honor and excitement that the nominating committee who elects state officers thought I was fit to serve Nebraska FFA and the agriculture industry in such a capacity."

Congratulations to Brooke, and good luck at national convention with her qualifying proficiency project in animal science!

Did you know that temperature of thermite is half the surface temperature of the sun? Thermite is composed of metal, powder, and rust; this creates a fuel together which lights up and burns. This year, one of the many activities ZerO-K participants did was research the temperature of thermite and learn how fast it burns.

ZerO-K is a science club that conducts experiments to learn how science works. Some of the experiments conducted this year included turning milk into plastic, creating a solar-powered charging station, an egg launch challenge, a card sized computer, and using a anemometer to measure wind speeds. On Mondays ZerO-K members met to discuss projects and upcoming events and work on projects with other members.

Senior and publicist William Heller said, "I was excited to join a group interested in science and academics. I believe science is an important part of education, so getting to explore it at my own pace with friends sounded like a great idea."

Members enjoy the club because it is a fun way to learn science and do things hands-on. To celebrate the end of a fun year, ZerO-K members went camping. The club tested out their solar-powered charging station, and they were successful! Participants also learned how to protect themselves from lightning strikes and how to go geocaching (an outdoor activity where you use your GPS to hide and find containers).

After learning so much and enjoying the ride, members are already looking forward to their next experiment and adventure in the 2018-2019 school year.

BE Curious

With an increase of five students from last year, the 2017-18 Scoop staff continued to grow. Each member worked to improve their writing style and "The Latest Scoop" website.

At the beginning of each school year, the new staff members had to learn the basics of each style of writing: features, news, opinions, reviews, and sports stories. They also had to learn the camera basics.

"Every member of the staff grew so much over the course of the school year, not only with their writing and photography skills, but also as young adults," English teacher and Scoop adviser Samantha Ladwig said. "I am proud of each and every girl on the Scoop staff. I hope they continue to perfect their interviewing, writing, and photography skills when I leave. They have all come a long way already, so I am sure they will continue to improve."

Writing isn't the only thing the staff does. They also have to attend many outside of school events like middle school events, dances, sports, and organization activities to take photos and gather information for articles.

"Next year is going to feel really different without Mrs. Ladwig, but I can't wait to meet the new adviser," junior Allie Daro said. "I really enjoy the environment in the classroom, I like the staff members, and it's fun to work with them to make a publication."

"Good morning folks. Good morning. Welcome, welcome, welcome to another fun and exciting day of Graphic Design II/Yearbook here at David City where every day is a great day in this classroom. Who wants to start by sharing a positive?"

The 2017-18 yearbook staff started out with only five staff members. Throughout the first semester, time was spent selling ads to local businesses and learning about the Walsworth program.

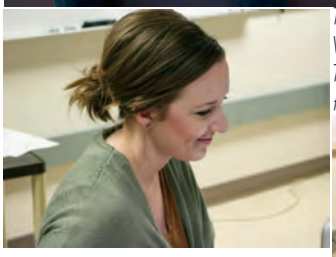

At the beginning of the second semester, the staff increased by six more students, racking the total up to 11.

There was a lot of diversity spread throughout the classroom with all members but one being new to yearbook, including both yearbook teachers. The beginning started out tough, but with the help of the yearbook advisers the team was able to learn many different skills.

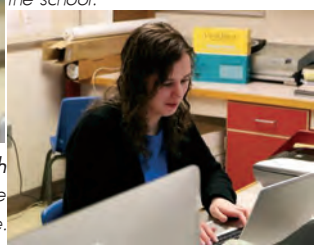

"The environment is very positive," sophomore Jaymee Lee said. "Everyone has been very inviting since I joined the staff at semester."

During the year, art teacher Tessa Vrbicky taught students basics of photography and editing skills. English teacher Sarah Oltjenbruns helped students with basic knowledge on the format, writing, and editing of yearbook articles.

"I hope students gain life skills in this class, especially responsibility with photography equipment and handling money," Vrbicky said. "I also hope they gain social skills with other students, coaches, teachers, and community members."

BUZZ! Miles Svoboda buzzes in and correctly throws out an answer to gain points! This was a common occurrence during the quiz bowl season. David City's quiz bowl team was small but mighty this year. The team consisted of 14 members, but because most were involved in many other school activities, it was sometimes challenging to find enough time and participants to enter a contest.

Despite these challenges, the team managed to take part in six contests against other students armed with only their wits to answer questions in a few short seconds.

"It was great to have some new members step in and compete well. We had some underclassmen who made strong contributions which makes me excited for the future of quiz bowl here at DCHS," quiz bowl sponsor Lisa Bales said.

We congratulate this year's quiz bowl team for their season and look forward to what they can do next year!

"Please stand for worship!" As eyes made their way toward the previously white screen, attendees saw bursts of color and rolling black text. This is what happened at Fields of Faith, one of the largest events this year's FCA (Fellowship of Christian Athletes) members experienced. After worship started, an abundance of speakers shared their experiences with the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ during sports, in schooling, and how that experience affected them. Additionally students were given the opportunity to share their time at the FCA leadership camp. They had students lead them in prayer, singing, worship, and explain how Christ impacted their lives. Outside of Fields of Faith, David City students kept busy with regular meetings and activities to appreciate their gift of faith.

BE Kind

"Be kind." This year, the Friends of Rachel (FOR Club) started after a moving speaker came to talk to the student body about Rachel's Challenge. It is a program that exists honoring life of Rachel Scott, the first victim of the Columbine High School shooting. Today Rachel's Challenge works to spread positivity, kindness, and start a chain reaction of good deeds.

The 2017-2018 FOR Club was sponsored by Samantha Ladwig and Meagan Lasiter. Students attended meetings and put together many projects in order to spread kindness around the school district. From painting a whole wall to holding a teddy bear drive, the club is taking a step in the right direction to starting a chain reaction of kindness.

"The more people we can involve in our kindness chain reaction, the more successful the club will be," Samantha Ladwig said.

The biggest project done was the kindness wall that was painted over at the elementary school. The purpose of it is to recognize acts of kindness students in the district do. This entails writing the act of kindness on a paper hand and then putting the little hand by the big hand.

"I think the wall was a good idea, and I liked the idea of having a handprint and having the positive comments around the hand. That way if people don't know about the FOR Club they will see the wall and the meaning behind it and continue the chain reaction," senior Lauren Hoeft said.

In the future, FOR Club hopes to expand and become bigger. Starting small and growing slowly with the help of the students, this club could become very successful.

"I would really like to see FOR Club grow in the coming school years. Right now our group consists mainly of upperclassmen, so hopefully the idea will trickle downward and more students will decide to become involved," Ladwig said.

BE Fuller Strong

"Don't take anything for granted. Enjoy the little things in life."

These words, spoken by Vice Principal Chad Fuller about lessons learned after an accident that changed his life, are words we can all take to heart.

In honor of the creation of FOR Club and the positivity and kindness it intends to spread, the yearbook staff wanted to dedicate this page to Assistant Principal Chad Fuller. He joined David City High School (DCHS) in 2014 as the assistant principal. After three years here, everything was about to change.

On July 8, 2017, Mr. Fuller was injured in a slip 'n slide accident when his head hit a sandbar hidden in a lake. His son Mack and brother Rusty saved his life when they pulled him out of the water and performed CPR. Upon Mr. Fuller's arrival to the hospital, doctors expected he would remain fully paralyzed and never be taken off the ventilator. Ten months after the accident, he has since returned home, underwent therapy, and started to recover. At the time of the writing of this article, Mr. Fuller is still undergoing therapy three days a week. He is in a wheelchair but has regained feeling in some muscles, has more strength on the left side of his body, and can move his left hand and toes.

After the accident, fundraisers were held throughout the area, raising money to help with hospital bills and to help with the purchase of a handicap accessible van. DCHS students also stepped up to the plate. Jake Seibert arranged a "Fuller Strong" t-shirt fundraiser, and Skylar Bush sold bracelets.

Even though Mr. Fuller will not be returning back to DCHS next year, he is staying positive. "You find other ways to do things and it's just a different normal now. You know? You never know what tomorrow will bring. I never thought I'd get any movement. Now I've got movement, and there's real good thought that I'll have full use of this left arm eventually."

While the academic climate of DCHS hasn't changed, the school year was different with his absence. Sophomore and yearbook member Jaymee Lee said, "he tried his hardest to be friendly with everyone and let everyone know they were welcomed and wanted. He tried to make sure they knew he cared about them."

Thank you for your time at DCHS, Mr. Fuller! We will miss you. Sophomore and yearbook staff member Skylar Busch said, "Thank you for constantly pushing us to become better because you've done it yourself after the accident, and you've become an inspiration to the community."

May we all learn to maintain a positive outlook, live each day to the fullest, and strive to show everyone we care. We wish Mr. Fuller the best of luck as he continues his road to recovery.

Homecoming. Probably the most exciting week of the year, but the most stressful for cheerleaders and dancers and the most fun for everyone else. This year's Homecoming theme was The Wizard of Oz. Dress up days included Somewhere Over the Rainbow (class color), Twister Tuesday (wacky day), Which Witch is Which? (twin day), Lions, Tigers, and Bears, Oh My! (dress like an animal day), and There's no place like HOME-coming (spirit colors). Winners chosen by the cheerleaders and platinum dancers and were announced on Friday at the downtown homecoming pep rally where they received awards donated by local businesses. Madison Soukup received first place for Somewhere Over the Rainbow, Spencer Allen for Twister Tuesday, Debbie White and Una Wen Boe for Which Witch is Which, and Cole Martinez for Lions, Tigers, Bears, Oh MY!. Spencer Allen was given a grand prize for going above and beyond each dress up day. A teacher prize was also given to Mr. Schlautman for showing support throughout the week by dressing up.

The downtown pep rally was a huge success. All grades K-12 were present along with staff, parents, and fans. Cheerleaders debuted their pop routine to a crowd. The guy/girl dance consisted of the platinum dance team along with senior football players who danced in cowboy boots to "Footloose" by Kenny Loggins.

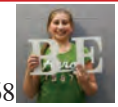

The Homecoming Court consisted of Renee Backstrom, Brooke Bell, Olivia Couch, Lauren Hoeft, Bethany Tebbe, Jackson Hardin, William Heller, Riley Kirby, Cole Martinez and Colin Vandenberg. The homecoming king and queen was Colin Vandenberg and Lauren Hoeft. "It was a good experience for when I run for president. Hopefully that campaign turns out better," Brooke Bell joked.

BE Trendy

The 2017-2018 school year was a time when the internet thrived. Apps survived and apps died cough Vine...Watching episode after episode to finish multiple TV series in a day was a high schooler's dream. Many of the trends revolved around social media. Being able to look back on what was popular will no doubt induce nostalgia, grins, and a "What was I thinking?!" in years to come.

Prom is a night full of glam, glitz and fun. This year, DCHS students traveled to Pairs for a night to remember. Rob Scheffler catered roast beef, potatoes, green beans and a triple chocolate brownie. After the meal the night commenced with photos and the grand march, followed by the dance. But the fun didn't stop there. The students then traveled to The Mark in Elkhorn, Nebraska for an arcade full of games.

BE Successful

"We were the last born in the 1900's. We were the first born in the 2000's. Our future lies before us. Let's make it happen."

Senior year may be something everyone looks forward to, but it can also be a time of great stress; in particular, graduation.

Graduation is what allows a student to move on and up in this world, providing an opportunity for further education, new career possibilities, and a better chance to discover who you are as a person.

The graduating class of 2018 consisted of 44 seniors. 42 of those seniors will be attending a university or a community college. The other two seniors will also stay busy; senior and exchange student Una Boe will be moving back home to Norway to continue her education, and Jeremy Johnson plans to enter the military.

During the ceremony, Brooke Bell was the first senior to give a commencement address, welcoming everyone to graduation. Jackson Hardin was the second speaker, giving an emotional speech sharing that education is important, but even more important are the people that surround you. The senior speakers wrapped up with class president Olivia Couch who shared memories of the past and hopes for the future.

The class of 2018 has faced their fears, made memories, and accomplished their goals. They experienced the lows, and definitely the highs. While there are some memories they can't wait to forget, there are even more they will always want to keep.

BE Nostalgic

Memories. They last a lifetime. What you wanted to BE, who you wanted to BE, and the friends you wanted to BE with. From school trips to house competitions, junior high students experienced memorable moments throughout the year. What will this year's junior high students take with them? We asked, and here are their responses.

Alex Tabbytosavit "Going to the fun night and dance."

Savannah Gregory "Mr. Ockander telling the poem of Jabberwocky"

Sidnee Busch "Athletic events were always fun for me and just being with my team."

Courtlyn Keeling "English class."

Braxton Small "Hanging out with my friends after practice."

Johnathan Hodyc "The middle school house trip"

Barrett Andel "Spending time with my friends in school and out of school activities."

Haden Forney "sports"

Carlos Vazquez "The lunch"

Colin Mills "The house competitions."

Valori Olson "Winning the quiz bowl tournament which was the first time we competed."

Ana Kephart "Getting to meet the new teachers and talking to people I've never talked to before."

Natalie Summers "The bus rides to and from volleyball games."

Fabi Viscarra "When my 6th period class celebrated Mr. Behrens birthday."

Dakota Blair "The middle school dances."

Joshlynn "The dance."

Jazmen Birkel "The trip to Defy Gravity. It was so much fun to bounce around with my friends."

Alesha Wallingford "The house field trip"

Ava Schlotfeld "The rides on the bus during cross country. We always jammed out to music using a speaker."

Maci Dion "My favorite memory was when a student kept making remarks and the teacher got annoyed and threw a marker at him. It was really funny."

Scouts Scouts Scouts. Team on three. One-Two-Three-Team! The girls chanted before they walked onto the court. Before each game, all of the girls huddle and do a little cheer together to pump up each other and get them ready for each game.

The 2017 junior high volleyball team consisted of 30 girls, with three teams, A, B, and C. They had many ups and downs throughout the season, but they considered it a success with many learning opportunities.

"I think that overall we had a strong connection with the incoming seventh graders," eighth grader Emily Glodowski said. "We all bonded instantly which made our team very strong."

Practices consisted of many drills, scrimmages, and the fundamentals of volleyball; hitting, serving, blocking, and passing.

"We had a lot of chemistry as a team and we always brought each other up, even after a tough loss," eighth grader Neely Behrns said.

The girls hope the teamwork they developed this season will flow into next year.

What would you do with $500? Over the course of the season, the junior high football team spent nearly that much money as they devoured nearly 100 Subway sandwiches. Prior to each game, team members chomped on sandwiches while mentally preparing for their games. The team later huddled in the locker room and talked, sending encouraging messages to each other which lead to a positive environment for games.

During each game, players communicated with each other and the coach. They worked to better themselves during practices and during games. Practices started out difficult for many of the players fresh off summer break, but they improved as the season went on.

"Practices were hard the first week. Most of the team was out of shape, but practices consisted of many drills which got the team in shape," seventh grader Caden Denker said.

Although the season was tough, the junior high football team still stuck through and made improvements throughout the whole season.

"The team got along well in the beginning," eighth grader Haden Forney said. "After a while we eventually became more comfortable with each other and the communication became stronger."

BE Mighty

Seven meets. Within these seven meets, junior high wrestlers started with basics wrestling techniques and progressed to more advanced techniques.

The change from eighth grade year to entering high school will be a huge transition for most of the junior high wrestling boys. The "chill" vibes of junior high wrestling will be left behind for the incoming freshman. Practices and meets are going to become more competitive with an increasingly higher expectation level.

"The season has been more fun than competitive," eighth grader Tre Daro said. "We always supported each other, no matter if it was a win or a loss."

Before each meet, coach Tahner Thiem and the wrestlers would set a team medal goal for the night. If they met that goal, they would stop at McDonald's on the bus ride home, and surprisingly, that gave the wrestlers a lot of motivation to win.

"This year we had a high energy group, and I really enjoy coaching junior high because I get to know them before coaching them in high school," coach Thiem said. "Practices are just like it would be in high school, they all work at the same pace."

From the long bus rides to the McDonald's pit stops, the junior high wrestlers had a successful season while preparing for their high school careers.

"We worked hard all the time and expect nothing but the best from ourselves and each other."

These words from eighth grader Neely Behrns demonstrate the mindset of the junior high girls basketball team. Initially, the girls got off to a challenging start.

"We practice hard at fundamentals, so the girls got better as the season went on," said coach Tom VanWinkle.

As long as members are willing to try, coach VanWinkle said he is happy to have them. With the girls' improvement after practice and the development of stronger teamwork, the team turned their season around. Good luck to returning members next year and those who will begin their high school careers!

Excited. Confident. Ready.

These are three words that some of the junior high boys basketball team members used to describe their feelings about the season.

"In practice, our coaches worked on fundamentals to prevent turnovers in games. We also made sure to continuously cycle through our plays so that when it is time for a game, we knew what to do," seventh grader Caden Denker said.

Through the boys' dedication at practice, the last games of the season were a success.

Be prepared. Be successful. Be experienced. Middle school is a time for students to mentally and physically prepare for high school sports and activities.

This year the middle school track team competed in six regular season meets and their conference meet. The team was coached by Ronda Gestring, Sam Schlautman, Samantha Ladwig, and Amanda Novak.

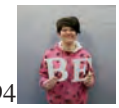

"My favorite moment was seeing the excitement of the athletes when they got a new PR [personal record]. It was also a great moment when the girl's team got second place overall at the Osceola meet, it was such a great accomplishment!" coach Schlautman said.

The team put a lot of hard work in at practices having them inside and outside preparing to be victorious at track meets. Both the girls and boys ended with many new PR's and many moments they will share in high school. Hard work paid off for two of the athletes who qualified for state. Eighth graders Neely Behrns qualified in the 100 meter dash, and Lili Eickmeier qualified in the 200 meter hurdles. But at the end of the day, just as important as the results was the support recieved on the way there.

"We support each other through track workouts and cheer each other on at track meets," Eickmeier said.

Be supportive. Be a team. Be champions.

BE Young

Middle school is known for being the awkward stage, the unknowing stage, better known as the transition stage. Eighth grader Alysha Steele put it, "In elementary school I thought everything was so easy, and some of us felt like we were the big dogs. But as we got to the high school, everything was a little harder and then I felt at least like we were hamsters." When moving into middle school, students believe that their whole social status decreases. Elementary schoolers look forward to being in the big school with more classes and more fun while high schoolers look down at the smaller children who are literally running to class and learning about personal hygiene.

Transitioning into middle school has its downfalls like class schedule, different teachers, locker combinations, different lunch times, and shorter breaks from class to class. Another downfall is, according to eighth grader Sebastian Fuller, "running up and downstairs to classes." Despite all these downfalls, the perks of middle school make up for it. Making new friends, house competitions, middle school dances, sports, and even the classes that can be taken.

There are so many memories that are created in middle school, starting with house competitions. Being with your assigned house while playing tug of war, human foosball or building a tower out of tape, spaghetti noodles, and a marshmallow can be pretty entertaining. Students enjoyed the middle school dance put on by STAY-U and getting a feel of homecoming before their high school years. Students met new people and really got to know one another.

Middle school is a great learning process to figure out who you are and who you want to be. Through the different classes, students can explore their options. Middle school is the perfect learning stage, a great transition period.

"BE yourself because an original is worth more than a copy," an anonymous person once said. To BE a Scout is something that many students at David City High School are proud of. During this 2017-2018 school year students created memories that will BE cherished forever.

BE a champion. Athletes and members of organizations made an impact by bringing home two state titles and a runner-up title. The One Act and speech teams worked to BE creative and brought home state titles, speech for the third consecutive year. The wrestling team won the state runner-up title.

BE positive. There were many things added to the school this year including starting construction at the elementary and creating a new club to #BEKIND. Friends of Rachel (FOR Club) was created to spread kindness around the district. Being kind and positive was a focus of this year with having moving speakers share their story and having an impact on students.

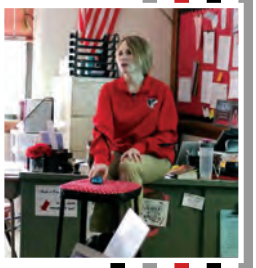

BE successful. Students were proud to BE a Scout this school year because of our accomplishment whether big or small. The seniors will BE missed and the juniors will BE welcomed into their shoes. School wasn't just about learning. It was about growing and prospering and striving to become who we want BE in the future.

Una Boe

Dear Una,
You amaze me every day. I am so proud of your brave choice your honesty, and who you are. The memories from our life together fills me with love and happiness every day.
Mom

Dear Una,
Thank you for joining our family and sharing Norway with us. We look forward to hearing about your next adventure.
Blessings, Matt and Sarah

Cole Martinez

Cole,
We are very proud of what you have accomplished in your years of school. We know you will make us proud in the future.
Love,
Your Family

Hannah Farmer

Hannah,
There are no words that could ever truly describe how proud we are to call you our daughter. Your infectious laughter, faith, willingness to help others, kindness, positivity and your never give up attitude are just some examples of how truly amazing you are. Your beauty shines inside and out. Nothing could ever describe the love we have for you, our first born. We are so very proud of you and all of your accomplishments up to this point. You have overcome so many obstacles through the years and you still manage to land on top.
Our wish for you as you embark on the next chapter of your life is that you know we will always be there for you. It seems like it was just yesterday we were watching you graduate kindergarten. Always remember how proud of you we are, that no one is perfect, that storms do eventually pass, to never lose your faith in God and that you will always be our first love, our Hannah Banana.

Lauren Hoeft

Lauren Mae:
Eighteen years ago we were blessed with our third daughter. You have grown into a beautiful, thoughtful, caring person. We are so very proud of you and your accomplishments. As you start your next journey, know we are always here for you.
We love you with all our hearts,

Mom, Dad, Megan, Broderick, Morgan, & Madison

Mason Helgoth

Mason,
Congratulations!! Words cannot express how proud we are of you!!
Always dream big and work hard! Remember your roots, manners, and the way home! We love you more than you will ever know!!
Dad, Mom, Nolan, Logan, and Keyan

Payton McMillin

Dear Payton
Where did the time go? We're going to miss your smiling face & amazing personality around the house. You're such a sweet, beautiful girl with a caring soul, & we know you'll succeed at anything you put your mind to. Travel & take everything in - time passes so quickly...
We love you more than you'll ever know!
Mom, Kurt, Dad, Jenn, & Nash
